* If you need to design logos, album covers, or publication covers, you have more options than just using Photoshop. Most design firms offer Photoshop training. Check out the Creative Suite Training (www.creativesuite.com/products/creativesuite-training). * Elements can be a good basic choice for a beginner. It offers advanced version of many of Photoshop's features. Here are some reasons to consider Elements: * It has a simple, straightforward interface. * You can save your work in the JPEG format. * Very few of the features are not available in other programs, such as the shape builder. # Using Photoshop Features Photoshop contains many different tools that are used to edit images. In the following sections, we take a look at some of the most useful features. ## Layer Panel As with other GIMP functions, the Layer panel can be located on the left side of the Photoshop window. However, unlike in other programs, the Photoshop Layer panel is fully populated. All the editing tools can be used on any layer. You can work on as many layers as you like, at the same time. You can work on only one layer. In addition to basic operations, you can work on layers that contain transparency. Elements' Transparency tool (see Chapter 7) is an easy way to create transparency effects. The best part is that this tool also works on layers, in addition to bitmaps. You may see the Layers panel display a button labeled Contents, as shown in Figure 2-9. Right-click the layer to edit it, or double-click it to open it for editing. If you don't see that button, double-click the _layer_ (the round shape). Figure 2-9 and Figure 2-10 show what that button looks like. FIGURE 2-9 FIGURE 2-10

Q: Google Custom Search App Engine and Requirements for SearchFeed I've tried to use Google Custom Search on App Engine in Python. For some reason, as soon as I call SearchFeed or any Google API in App Engine it stop running. In a Python script that will run on App Engine I need to search hundreds of thousands of webpages for keywords. I'm pretty sure that there is something wrong with my search query because when i run this script in a local environment it takes around 17 seconds. Searching for the same query in Google websearch takes about 0.3 seconds and returns about 2400 (or more) results. Can I use Google Custom Search for this kind of tasks on App Engine? What are the things that I can't do with Google Custom Search on App Engine that I can do on Google websearch? Is there any way to debug Google Custom Search on App Engine? Thanks in advance! # /usr/local/bin/python """ Module Description: API user search script """ import os import webapp2 from google.appengine.ext import db from google.appengine.ext import webapp from google.appengine.ext import search from google.appengine.ext.webapp import util from google.appengine.api import users class MainPage(webapp.RequestHandler): def get(self): search_words = users.get_current_user().email search_query = "*.appengine.google.com/search?q=" + search_words + "&num=1000&source=gb" request = search.Query() request.request(search_query) search_feed = search.QueryFeed() response = search_feed.send(self.request.path) if response.is_success: results = [] for item in response.results: #results.append(item.url)

Q: Tornado - Access to Variable in Template I would like to create a grid based on variables to give me the possibility to sort the data in my template. Since I am only entering some variables and not all of them, I am afraid the variables will be undefined, so I am looking for a way to get the variables from my context. My goal is to fetch the list_name from the context and iterate through it, since I couldn't access the list in the template. views.py class List(ListCreateAPIView): model = List serializer_class = ListSerializer def get_queryset(self): return List.objects.all() def get_serializer_context(self): c = super(List, self).get_serializer_context() c['list_name'] = self.kwargs['name'] return c template.html {% for list in list_name %} {{ list.name }} How can I fetch the list_name from the context? I tried to go through the API and request a dictionary from context. However, that was wrong since my view returns a queryset. def get_serializer_context(self): c = super(List, self).get_serializer_context() c['list_name'] = self.kwargs['name'] return c A: You should pass your list_name into the context like so: views.py def get_serializer_context(self): c = super(List, self).get_serializer_context() c.update({'list_name': self.kwargs['name']}) return c In your template.html you would then access the variable like so: {% for list in list_name %} {{ list }} Q: How can I tell if my Notification Center is up
